

Heritage Congregational Church
3102 Prairie Rd, Madison, WI 53719

will present a free concert

Sunday, November 7, 2010

3:00 p.m.

Don and Janet Smith

They will perform music by Sondheim, Barber, Schubert, Rachmaninoff, Vaughan Williams as well as some of Janet Smith's own compositions.

The Smiths, long time Madison residents, met as a two piano team while attending Northwestern University where Don was a dual journalism and musicology major and Janet earned a bachelor's degree in choral conducting and a master's in applied piano. They have held church positions as organist and choir director. Don worked for many years in the record industry and both maintained a private piano studio. For several years he was Chorus Master of the Madison Opera. Janet also was a founding member of "Opera for the Young" presenting programs for school children throughout the state. Together they researched and presented five choral programs of music by Rossini, Schubert and Brahms and others. As a baritone, Don is currently enjoying expanding his love of lecture/recitals to include programs exploring repertoire that feature both vocal and piano literature. Current interest centers on works by 20th Century American composers Charles Ives and Samuel Barber.

Admission is free.
